

FLY FISHING IN WISCONSIN

MUSKY MADNESS

Since 2013

Hosted by Bob and Lisa White

THE MUSKY

If there's another freshwater fish that evokes the same awe and passion, I'd be hard-pressed to name it. I admit to you that I've been badly bitten by the musky-bug, particularly watching one of these fish come to a fly!

I'd like to share the magic with you.

To this end, I've organized a dedicated team of guides and a small group of fly fishermen to fish some of the best musky water in the upper-Midwest. We call it, "Musky Madness", and this will be our tenth event.

In 2019, our friend and filmmaker Jordan Stocker captured the spirit of the event in this short film.

EXPECTATIONS

Arguably, musky fishing is not for everyone, and while I certainly don't want to sound discouraging... I do want you to have reasonable expectations about the trip. I don't like to disappoint my friends.

All guides have different thoughts about it, but I think it's safe to say most would agree that a couple of follows or "eats" is a good day of musky fishing.

In my limited experience, it's not uncommon to go days without seeing a musky. But, when everything comes together, it's possible to see multiple fish and for each angler to have multiple eats. A musky to the boat is a rare and mystical occurrence, and it's our goal that everyone experiences it.

For the event, we've chosen an extremely target-rich location with short drives to multiple floats on the Chippewa and Flambeau Rivers of northern Wisconsin.

Over the course of the trip, you can also expect to catch a few smallmouth bass and northern pike.

OUR SPECIAL GUEST

Brad Bohen

I've known Brad for over two decades and Lisa and I are proud to call him our friend. Brad is arguably a forerunner of what has become a very big deal... catching musky on fly, and I think it's safe to say that he knows as much about fly fishing for musky as anyone alive. His passion for musky, and innovations in every aspect of fishing for them has set the course for the way nearly everyone approaches these trophy fish. He holds the Fresh Water Fishing Hall of Fame record for a released musky on a fly... an impressive 51-inch fish.

In acknowledgement of Brad's storied history and his achievements we've invited him to be our special guest at this year's Musky Madness. Plan on an after-dinner presentation in which Brad will discuss the history of fly fishing for musky, the current state of the sport, and what he thinks the future holds for these near-mythical fish and those who pursue them... with a lively discussion to follow.

MUSKY GUIDES

Dan Boggs

I met Dan several years ago at the Great Waters Fly Fishing Expo, and we became fast friends. Dan is a very experienced and knowledgeable fly fisherman, and one of the most enthusiastic guides I've ever spent time with. He has developed a great reputation guiding the rivers of the upper Midwest for smallmouth bass, northern pike and musky. Dan is also an FFF Certified Casting Instructor.

Learn more about Dan and his outfitting business, Flying Musky Guide Company.

Hunter Dorn

Hunter grew up in Lodi, WI where he rode his bike to the local trout streams and out to Lake Wisconsin. At 12, he bought his first canoe and at age 19, he bought his first drift boat. After transplanting a couple times to Montana, Colorado and Michigan he found himself drawn back home to Wisconsin. Now, after decades of fishing and guiding in Wisconsin, he can't imagine spending life any other way.

Visit the Wisconsin Fly Fishing Company website to learn more about Hunter and his guide service.

MUSKY GUIDES

David Holmes

David was born and raised in the Midwest along the St Croix River and has been chasing fish for as long as he can remember. He now guides full time on rivers across Minnesota and Wisconsin. He has a deep passion for chasing Musky, and helping others land their dream fish. He is energetic, passionate, and a patient teacher. David runs a 17ft jet boat and is a USCG licensed captain.

You can visit his website at davidholmesguiding.com or get in touch with him at 651-269-7644.

Gabe Schubert

Gabe and I enjoy the same circle of friends, but incredibly, we'd not met until we guided a musky trip together in 2012. I know very few fly fishermen who have the same breadth of knowledge and passion for musky and musky fishing as Gabe. I'm a firm believer in Gabe and the musky flies he ties. I look forward to working with Gabe again on our musky trip.

MUSKY GUIDES

Tony Stifter

I've known Tony for three decades and have spent a lot of time with him in the field and on the water. I've never met a more focused or competent outdoorsman. He's also a wonderful communicator and enjoys teaching his fishermen everything he knows about catching musky on the fly. Lisa and I were thrilled that he joined our team and look forward to all the positive energy he brings to the trip.

Weston Thier

I've known Weston for several years now, and we run into each other in all the usual places; a Northwood's café having breakfast with his clients before a day on the water, or under a bridge on a rainy day having lunch with his boat mates. And, we've gotten together in some highly unusual places, like the bodega at the international airport in Buenos Aires.

Weston's easy-going personality and passionate fishiness helped him develop into a skilled fishing guide. Learn more about him at Fontinalis Fly Fishing.

EQUIPMENT

Flies – Tying flies that muskies eat is a fine art, and every guide has his own idea about what works best. If you have some flies you want to bring, or need an excuse to visit your local fly shop, by all means, do so... but you'll probably want to fish with whatever your guide has tied because he knows how they work, and believes in them.

All of the guides will have flies available for sale. Good musky flies are tied on select hooks, with premium materials, and average around $30.00 each. It's a good thing they're fished with shock-tippets of 80-pound fluorocarbon or steel wire!

Rods – It's recommended that you have at least one or two 10 to 12-weight rods (12-weight preferred). You'll be glad to have the extra muscle when casting large flies, or trying to stop a big fish from getting into a woodpile.

We all have our favorite rod manufacturers, but it isn't necessary to spend an exorbitant amount of money on a good fly rod these days. Let me know if you'd like some recommendations.

Reels – Any large, single action fly reel that's matched to the line it holds will do the job. It's unusual for musky to make long, sustained runs in a river, but a trust-worthy drag is always a good thing. Large arbor reels have the added advantage of quick line retrieval. Besides having a dependable drag, I recommend that you fish with a reel that's comfortable and you know well.

Lines – You'll undoubtedly use large flies, which are best fished suspended in the water-column. Sinking tip lines manage this best. A good friend of mine feels that intermediate tip lines are good, full intermediate lines are better, and sink tip lines are best.

Most agree upon these line recommendations (by grain weight) for the following rod weights:

- 10wt - 400
- 11wt - 450
- 12wt – 500

The exception to this is if the angler will be spending a lot of time on shallower water. In this case an intermediate tip or full intermediate is best.

There are a number of manufacturers and lines to choose from:

- Rio Outbound
- RioVersi-Tip System
- Scientific Angler's Streamer Express (26 foot tip)
- Scientific Angler's Wet Tip Express
- Air Flo Bass Musky Fly Line

Leaders & Shock Tippets – This is one area that's best left to your guide. All musky guides have their own leader/shock-tippet systems that they know, and trust. If the leader or shock-tippet fails (God forbid) you'll be happy to have had nothing to do with it!

If you'd like to help the guides out, you might have some Teeny 7.5' Pat Ehlers Hand-Tied Pike/Musky Leaders in your boat bag.

DON'T FORGET THE USUAL STUFF - Waders, raingear, warm layers, warm hat, polarized glasses, sense of humor, etc.

DATES and LOCATION

We will fish the Chippewa and Flambeau Rivers of northern Wisconsin for three full days, on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, - September 20, 21, and 22.

Plan to arrive on the afternoon of Thursday, September 19 at Legacy Lodge, W6821 Golf Course Road, Winter, Wisconsin 54862.

DAILY SCHEDULE

Thursday, September 19 - Arrive mid-afternoon or early evening, unpack, meet the guides, stock up on a few flies, trade stories, and relax with a drink before dinner.

Friday, September 20 - Breakfast at 7am, get on the water as soon as possible, fish until 5 or 6pm, and return to see what wondrous things Lisa has done in the kitchen for dinner. Enjoy dinner and stories.

Saturday, September 21 - Repeat

Sunday, September 22 - Repeat. Stay with us for dinner and leave Monday morning. Or, fish as long as you can before departing.

Monday, September 23 - Depart after breakfast.

ACCOMMODATIONS

Our party of twelve fishermen and six guides will stay at Legacy Lodge in northern Wisconsin. The lodge is located on Barker Lake, east of Hayward and the Chippewa River Flowage. This classic northwoods lodge features a stone fireplace, pool table, bar, spacious lounging and dining rooms, nine bedrooms, and five bathrooms. Our rates are based on double occupancy. The lodge and cabins are strictly no-smoking, but an outdoor smoking area is provided.

We serve hearty breakfasts and sumptuous dinners accompanied by thoughtfully matched wines and hand-crafted beers. You are welcome to bring any hard spirits that you would like to enjoy during your stay. The guides will provide lunches and refreshments each day on the river.

The lodge was built in 1929 by the famous Joe Saltis. "Polack Joe" was a a Joliet, Illinois saloon keeper, bootlegger, gangster, and rival of Al Capone. Saltis spent an estimated $100,000 in the building of the rustic two-story cedar log lodge, cabins and a nine-hole golf course. In 1930, Saltis retired to this retreat on the Barker Lake shoreline. The colorful stories about him and his guests (including Capone) still circulate around the Winter, Wisconsin area.

Formerly known as Barker Lake Lodge, the property was recently purchased by the Hurt family and has undergone extensive renovations. We are very excited to share this lodge with you!

RATES and TERMS

COST

$2,800.00 per person based on double occupancy

Price includes guiding (two anglers per guide), all lodging, meals, wine, and beer. Not included are transportation costs to and from Legacy Lodge, Wisconsin fishing license, hard liquor, and gratuities.
